Youth Statement

Tripartite (China, Japan, and the Republic of Korea) Youth Statement on Environmental Problems

The Tripartite Environment Student Summit (TESS) 2009

Nagoya, Japan

14th-17th November 2009

Preamble

We, the representatives from China, Japan, and the Republic of Korea, gathered for the Tripartite Environment Student Summit (TESS) 2009. During the summit, we exchanged our opinions about our environmental activities in our own countries. We also discussed environmental problems in the three countries, what our generation can do to solve the problems while building a stronger relationship among the three countries.

Based on the discussions we had during the summit, we have made the following statement. In the first part, we focus on our awareness of the present situation. Secondly our call on various agencies to promote the environmental cooperation among the three countries is stated. And the third part is on what we, youth, can do and want to do to promote our cooperation.

Our Awareness of the Present Situation

China, Japan, and the Republic of Korea account for 22% of the world population and for 70% of the total GDP of the Asia region, making the three countries very important in the world politics and economy. For that reason, they have a large influence on world environmental problems such as climate change (about one fourth of the GHG emissions of the world are attributed to the three countries) and the loss of biodiversity. At the regional level, the three countries have cross-border environmental problems such as the yellow sand and the E-waste problem, and possess similar domestic problems including waste management in the cities and pollution.

The three countries have a strong relationship in the environmental field at the government level, such as Tripartite Environment Ministers Meeting (TEMM), and Tripartite Environmental Education Network (TEEN). However, because of the historical issues and the language barrier, our cooperation is still not enough.

Our Vision

In order to solve the environmental problems at the regional and the global level, the cooperation among China, Japan and the Republic of Korea is essential.

We think that our three countries face similar environmental problems. These problems are not only tightly related to youth's future but also determine all human beings' future. We have to cooperate with each other, which is an effective way to solve these problems. The cooperation should be promoted by the governments, corporations, NGOs and researchers, and the citizens.

We Call On

National governments

- to strengthen the network among the three countries, holding more meetings on environmental problems.
- to support more youth activities making efforts to solve national environmental problems and to make sustainable networks of the three countries.

Corporations

- to improve and share the green technology (such as clean energy) in each country, because we suffer from similar problems, such as waste management and pollution.
- to create more green jobs by promoting Corporate Social Responsibility activities.

NGOs and Researchers

- to organize regular meetings with counterparts of the three countries and study how their activities build a reciprocal relationship.
- to exchange the outcomes of their researches and find how their works make a better life.

Citizens

- to join more grass-roots environmental activities and change their lifestyles into more sustainable ones.

What We, Youth, Can Do and Want To Do To Promote Cooperation.

We, youth of the three countries, have already been doing various kinds of environmental activities, and made several networks through international conferences and other environmental events. However, our national activities currently suffer from many limitations. Therefore, in order to make our activities more significant and more influential, we will commit ourselves to make the network stronger and larger, and to do the following activities.

- Make an eco-website in order to share information of the environmental situation and activities systematically.
- Adopt each other's eco-campus activity, since we already have creative campus-based activities in each country.
- Visit each country and plan eco-tours, where we can feel the real nature and raise awareness to conserve it.

These youth activities will lead to the solution of environmental problems among three countries, and we can protect our beautiful planet, the earth.
