

Results of Radiation Monitoring of Tap Water (until Jan. 2012)

Prepared based on the Committee on Living Environment and Water Supply in March 2012

The tap water monitoring showed that radioactive cesium has seldom been detected since May 2011, not to mention short-half-life radioactive iodine.

Included in this reference material on March 31, 2013

Updated on March 31, 2019