

Welcome to Shinjuku Gyoen National Garden

The present site of Shinjuku Gyoen was originally one part of Edo residence of the Lord Naito, the vassal of Ieyasu Tokugawa. In the Meiji era, it became an agricultural experiment station, and then in 1906 it was made into an imperial garden. After the war in 1949, it was opened to the public as a national garden. The garden contains three styles, Landscape Garden, Formal Garden, and Japanese Traditional Garden, and is considered to be one of the most important modern western style gardens in the Meiji era.

Please follow the rules below in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19 infection in Shinjuku Gyoen.

Request to visitors

Physical distancing

Maintain physical distancing (2 meters if possible).

Please refrain from using a large picnic blanket (one side: over 2 meters) to avoid congestion.

Please wear a face mask and follow cough etiquette.

Please refrain from visiting with a large group of people.

Please refrain from visiting the garden if you have cold symptoms such as fever and coughs.

Wash and sanitize your hands frequently.

Please refrain from jogging in the garden for the time being.

Let's enjoy autumn roses

At the Rose Beds, about 100 different species of 500 roses in full bloom can be enjoyed twice a year, in the spring and autumn. The autumn roses have deeper petal colors and better fragrances. In addition, the autumn colors of the sycamore trees on the both sides are also worth seeing.
