Extinct Fishes

The image shows three extinct fish species. On the left is a large, elongated fish with dark vertical stripes, identified as Spinibarbus hollandi. In the center is a smaller, more rounded fish with similar stripes, identified as Varicorhinus alticarpus. On the right is a fish with a more complex shape, featuring a large head and prominent, reddish-brown, fleshy appendages, possibly a type of loach or similar small fish. The background is a soft, out-of-focus underwater scene with light rays and a sandy or rocky bottom.
